Mysterious Murder at Farmington, Conn

Mysterious Murder at Farmington, Conn. From the Hartford Courant.

Mr Thompson was a small farthur in casy circumstances, living with his mother and a young sister about sixteen years of sge, on the road leading to Taltott Mountain, about fifty roils from the Farmington road. On Sunday evening, about seven o'clock (his mother says at half past seven) while they were sitting together in their kitchen, some one knocked at the door, and upon opening it he saw a young man standing on the steps, and inquired of him what he wanted—the stranger said that his wagon had broken down at the fork of the roads, and requested Mr Thompson to go wish him and help to set things. Thompson to go with him and help to set things to rights again. Mr Thompson had his shoes off, at the tifte and stopped to put them on, after which he went with the stranger. In the mean time, the stranger remained outside and shut the door. If had been gone about lirree quarters of an isour, when his mother became alormed and suspected that some evil had be fallen him. She was too fields herself to go in search of him and so such her boung daughter, tellings her to go to the nearest neighbors and get help to look for her son. She went down the Thicott moun than road, on which the house is situated, about fifty rods, where it interacets with the Farming ton road, and then proceeded about helf a mile down the latter to the nearest neighbor's At the fork of the roads is a large willow tree, and under this tree lay the body of the murdered man. The brave yoing girl passed within less that twenty fiet of the road grid in the prother lay there in the embrace of death. On returning with the neighbor the load was found lying on the side of the road, within a few feet of where the girl had passed but a few minutes before, with all signs of life extinct. Two or three teams had driven by the same spot after the nearest, but only one noticed the body lying there, and the occupant, supposing it was only a drunken man did not stop to make further examination. rights again. Mr Thompson had his shoes of up, and was discolored and also much swollen, there were also bruises about his face and fore head. The itervised blow was given on the top of the head, crosswise, which the doctors sylvroke his skull, and was the one which probably killed him. They think it was done with a break round stick, but the face that neither the fiesh nor the akin was broken, would argue against this. There were closs of blood settled under the skin, mult be skull was kratly depressed, n and has had no trouble with any one, his mother asy, since she can remember. It is conjectured that the intention of the murderer was to go hack to the house after he had committed the deed, and secure whatever of money or valuables to might find, but that he was frightened from his purpose by the fact of there being 80 much possing of teams as about that time. Mr. Thompon had no money of any amount in the house of the most there a few eweeks ago, but on the advice of his mother, had deposited them some time since in the Farming too bank.

Who the murderer is, is also a mystery, but a suspicious are aroused in regard to a strange young mass who had been seen in Farmington, and on the road between that place and Thompon the number.

Triffee. (For the Morning Merald.)
Why should up deinter them, when it is without make up the sum of our existence? All the events of our lives, of all lives, even the greatest, have hung upon little, unimportant things that were scarcely noticed. There are a hundred familiar illustrations we might call to mind. The simple falling of an apple was the means of opening to the world the meaterion laws of gravitation; the careless arrangemen of broken glass in the hands of children, introduced the wonderful telescope; and the lifting of a little lid by steam, placed in the hand o man the greatest wonder the world has ever known, the power of steam.

These are familiar to every school boy; and how many others could we bring from the liver of prominent men; to prove the importance of trilles. Follow up the thread of any event that has ever startled the world by its magnitude and grandeur, and it will be found to have had its source in some trifling cause, as the mightlest rivers which sweep their channels through the land, first come to view as tiny streamlets

And upon the proper appreciation of little things depends the formation of our characters, for good or bad. We are too apt to think that trivial events are not worth our notice, that we will be just as capable of filling a high position fault uncorrected, as though each was carefully adjusted; but sh! it is a mistake. A truly noble character must be perfectly balanced in every point, and are not perseverance, patience and fortitude requisite to this and? and must they not be cultivated and brought into action in our daily life, if we would have them ready for the noment when a great demand is laid upon

I never look at any fine work of architecture as of our capitol at Washington, so beautiful in its ample proportions and surmounted by the giorious figure of the Goddess of Liberty, and see what an important place each stone and piece of marble occupies, but I think how nearly upward progress of the work, a stone had been tial to the hearty and magnificence of the finish ed structure, what would it have been? A frail. the crowning point of giory was raised to ado; a lts summit, the place that each one of those sumple pieces of marble should have occupied be missed, and the huilding that had whole world, would have tottered and tailen, and merely because a few little stones had no been inserted in their proper place; triffes had been scorned.

Thus our life will be, if each fault is not faith fully corrected, each duty fitted to its appropriate niche; when the test comes to prove whether we are truly great and noble, the lack will be detected, and we will be found wanting in the high qualities demanded of us.

re just emerging from the careless dreams of child and girlhood, should not carl your has at the many little incidents of your daily life, so triffing that you deem them uninportant, and yet, in reality, so essential, that your whole after life depends upon them. Pass them by , devote yourself only to more important things that suit your taste and charm your fancy, and in after years when stern duties press upon you, instead of having the crown of a noble womanhood under the accumulating trifles that fill up the neasure of every won in a existence, and become a complaining, despondent cresture, a trial to yourself and to all around you lethis your de-sire? or do you wish to be classed among that little band of true heroines that have blessed the world in all ages? Those who have risen supe rior to the cares and anxieties that weight others down, and in bringing happiness to all who come within range of their influence, have

Oh! if girls would make this the aim of their life, lustend of striving to be first in bannes of ple sure, instead of spending the glorious vigor and substance of youth in idle folly, how differ ent the world would be. Instead Sands of homes on every hand where disorder and strife prevail, what scenes of harmony and pure happiness would be found, and woman would occupy that exalted state of exectlence and worth

iound to rthemselves the only true joy of life

Girls! hereafter when you are tempted to let the triffing duties of home pass unperformed, or some little fault go uncorrected, think of the tottering, wortbless structure you are forming. and pause! Carefully adjust each little article in to its proper place and be blessed with the proud consciousness that you are treading onward in the path of true womanhood, and hying the foundation of a christian character and a home n heaven.

At some future day, if you desire, I will tell ou a sad little story that came through neglect of trifles, but now good by.

siderable number of families from abroad have lately located here. Unoccupied tenements are getting less and less numerous every day. A large number of new operators are commencing lively winter. Threats have been made by the roughs from Petroleum Centre, who were arrested and fined last Sunday in Pithole for their outrigeous conduct in our streets, that they will burn the city, and in other ways avenge themselves for having to pay for "their little fun." They will bear watching. If caught in carrying out any of their threats, they would be apt to suffer some. In a fight at Prather City last Wednesday, man named Scott got pretty severely handled, having three teeth knocked out, both eyes black-

ROOKER FARM.

The Whipple & Runals tract—formerly the Simmer & Pratt is being thoroughly developed by the new owners, who understand the business of oil mining in all his minutes. Messrs. Whipple & Runals now own the most productive portion of the Rooker Farm, and intend the til shall be curefully and properly tested. Under their management this tract of hand will become equal to point of productiveness to any territory on Puthole Creek. Ten new wells are now going down, and the tract is now producing more oil than at any other time since the fire. They are putting up a machine shop on their hand, so that they can do all their own work. Three hundred burrels per day are shipped from this tract. Every tank connects by pipes with the depot, so that no te uning is necessary. The sakes are so arranged and guarded that there is little danger of fire.

$4.00 per ton," are all advertised in our columns
The coal dealers are surious to convince their customers that their particular coals are either the blackest, the brightest, or have the most ea iorie in of any in market. Mesers, Edgar Hate & Co and Captain 6. H. Lee are daily filling lage orders for coal, and now mother Richmond is in the field—for Roberts & Co,, at the red plaining mill, have established a coal yard unde the able superintendence of a veteran in the trade. Mr L B. Silliman is well and favorably known to our citizens from his connection with the firm of Hale & Silliman, and Hale, Silliman & Fox. By reference to our advertising columns it will e seen that Roberts & Co. are now ready to fil orders for coal authracite, coal bituminous, coal for furnaces, coal for stoves, coal for anybody and coal for everybody. The market for Crude Petroleum, although steady, was very inselled to-day, owing to the fact that the market is utterly destitute of buyers at any price, aboute stagmation having supreme control. Prices remain nominally unchanged from our previous quotamain nominally unchanged from our previous quota-tions. We could learn of no change of views later-tained by holders from that roported by my swhereday, but there is no doubt but that they are all anxious to sell, from the fact that the immense quantity on hand is liable to take free and burn up, at any moment, and it does not improve by age, but is subject to a constant leakage and evaporation.
